Introduction

Pectin is a structural heteropolysaccharide contained in the primary cell walls of terrestrial plants. It was first isolated and described in 1825 by Henri Braconnot. It is produced commercially as a white to light brown powder, mainly extracted from citrus fruits, and is used in food as a gelling agent, particularly in jams and jellies.

It is also used in dessert fillings, medicines, sweets, as a stabilizer in fruit juices and milk drinks, and as a source of dietary fiber.

Pectin is a naturally occurring substance (a polysaccharide) found in all plant tissue, calcium pectin being present between the cell walls and serving as a strengthening or building agent.

Fruits naturally possessing relatively large amount of pectin include lemons, bitter oranges, apples, quinces, currants and plums. The main use for pectin (vegetable agglutinate) is as a gelling agent, thickening agent and stabilizer in food. The classical application is giving the jelly-like consistency to jams or marmalades, which would otherwise be sweet juices.

Moreover, economic development in China has resulted in increasing purchase power of consumers, leading to increasing demand for high-quality processed foods.

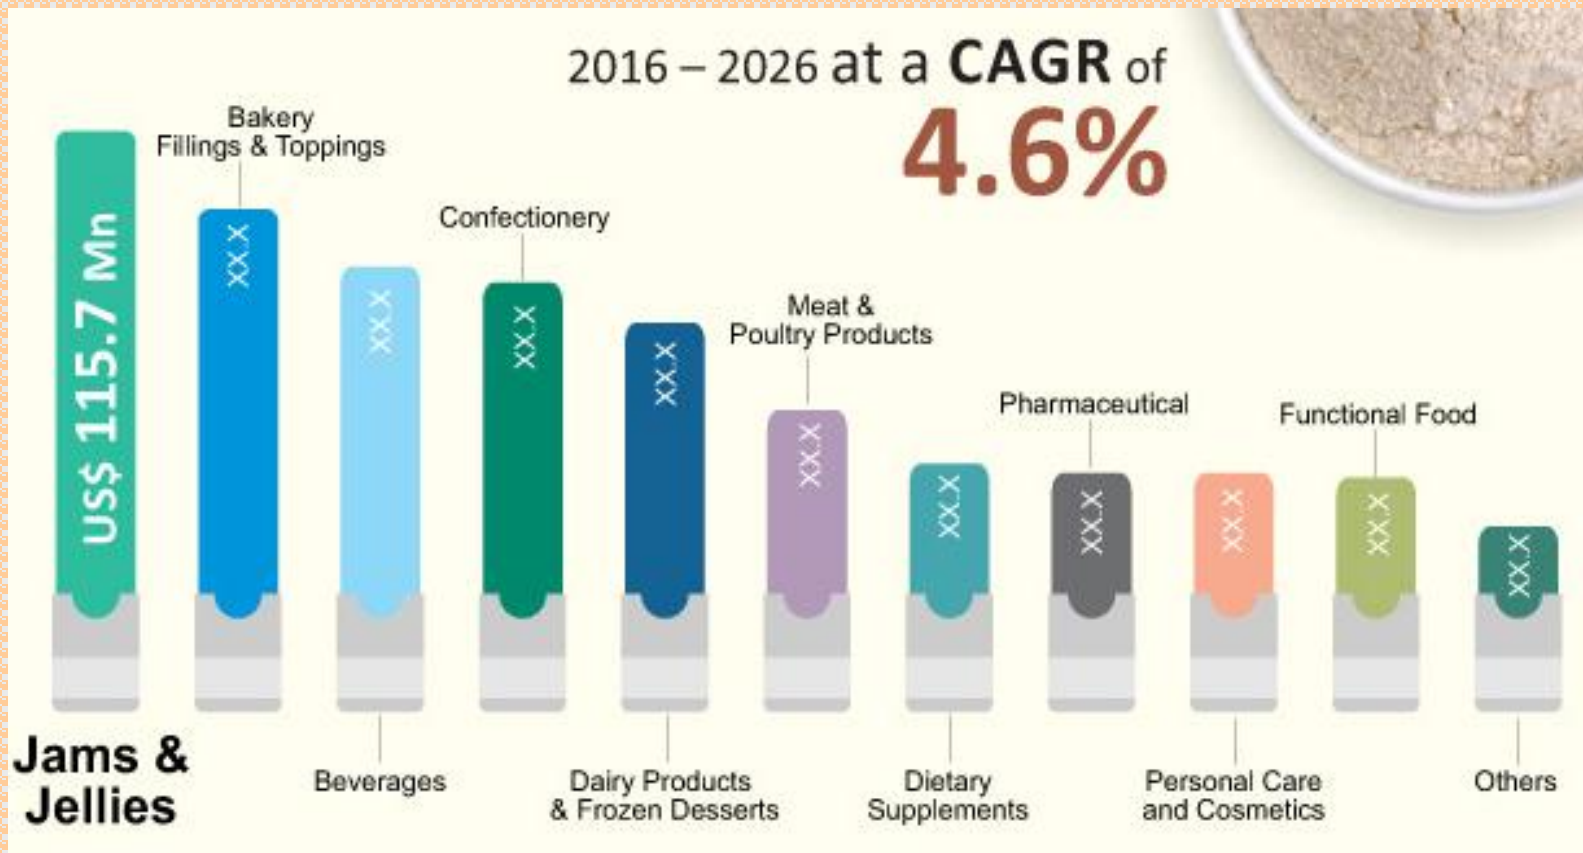

Market for pectin has been witnessing significant growth on account of rising demand for food products from developed as well as developing economies. The industry has been mature in developed regions such Europe, followed by North America. However, the industry for pectin is anticipated to grow rapidly in emerging economies such as China and India owing to change in lifestyle of the individuals as well as changing consumer preferences for convenience foods.

Although the industry for pectin is rapidly growing driven by rising demand for processed and convenience foods, growing preference towards functional foods from various health conscious consumers have also played a key role in the growth of the market. As a whole it is a good project for new entrepreneurs to invest.

Market Outlook

Pectin market was estimated to be valued at more than US$ 10 Mn by 2016 end and is expected to expand at a value CAGR of 5.3% over the forecast period.

Global Pectin Market

The global pectin market is expected to reach 1.9 billion by 2025, growing at an anticipated CAGR of 7.1% from 2016 to 2025.

Pectin Market Value, 2016-2021($ Million)

The global pectin market size was valued at USD 964.1 million in 2015 and is anticipated to grow at a CAGR of 7.1% over the next nine years. Increasing health concerns and growing usages of healthy & organic raw materials for producing edible products is expected to drive the market in the foreseeable period.

Pectin is a plant-derived soluble fiber compound, found in the plants cell walls. It is mainly extracted from citrus fruits, apples, apricots, cherries, oranges, and carrots. However, the major raw material used for the production of industrial product is apple and dried citrus peel which is available in white and light brown powder commercially.
