The various formats such as coils, mats, liquid vaporizers, sprays, creams, lotions, etc. are driving the segmental market of mosquito repellent market in India.

Over the last decade, India has witnessed robust increase in use of mosquito repellents due to rising incidence of mosquito borne diseases, increasing consumer awareness and growing health concerns. Moreover, Indian consumers are gaining interest in new technologically advanced products, which are less harmful to human health and are herbal in nature. On account of increasing health concerns, major mosquito repellent players operating in India have also been increasing their focus on introducing new products, like herbal creams, lotions, fabric Roll On and perfumes. These new products are created from plant based extracts that are considered less harmful compared to the chemical based compositions that dominate the India mosquito repellent market. Mosquito repellents market in India is highly competitive, and consequent, companies are increasingly focusing on product diversification to consolidate and expand their market shares.

India Mosquito Repellent Market has been growing with a CAGR of 4.79% from last five years and is projected to reach new heights by the year 2021 due to rising incidence of vector borne disease in India, growing awareness regarding prevention of mosquitoes, brand awareness, increasing disposable income, growing demand in middle class people and affordable price of mosquito repellent products. The various formats such as coils, mats, liquid vaporizers, sprays, creams, lotions, etc. are driving the segmental market of mosquito repellent market in India.

A mosquito repellent can be either a substance put on skin, clothing or vaporizer, mats, etc. which discourages mosquitoes from landing or crawling on that surface. Female mosquito feeds on blood which helps it to acquire protein, which is important for the development of her eggs. Whenever mosquito bites, she releases saliva into the area where she is feeding. If a mosquito is harboring a pathogen, such as a virus, a protozoan, or a nematode worm, it is possible that she can transmit the pathogen to humans through her saliva.

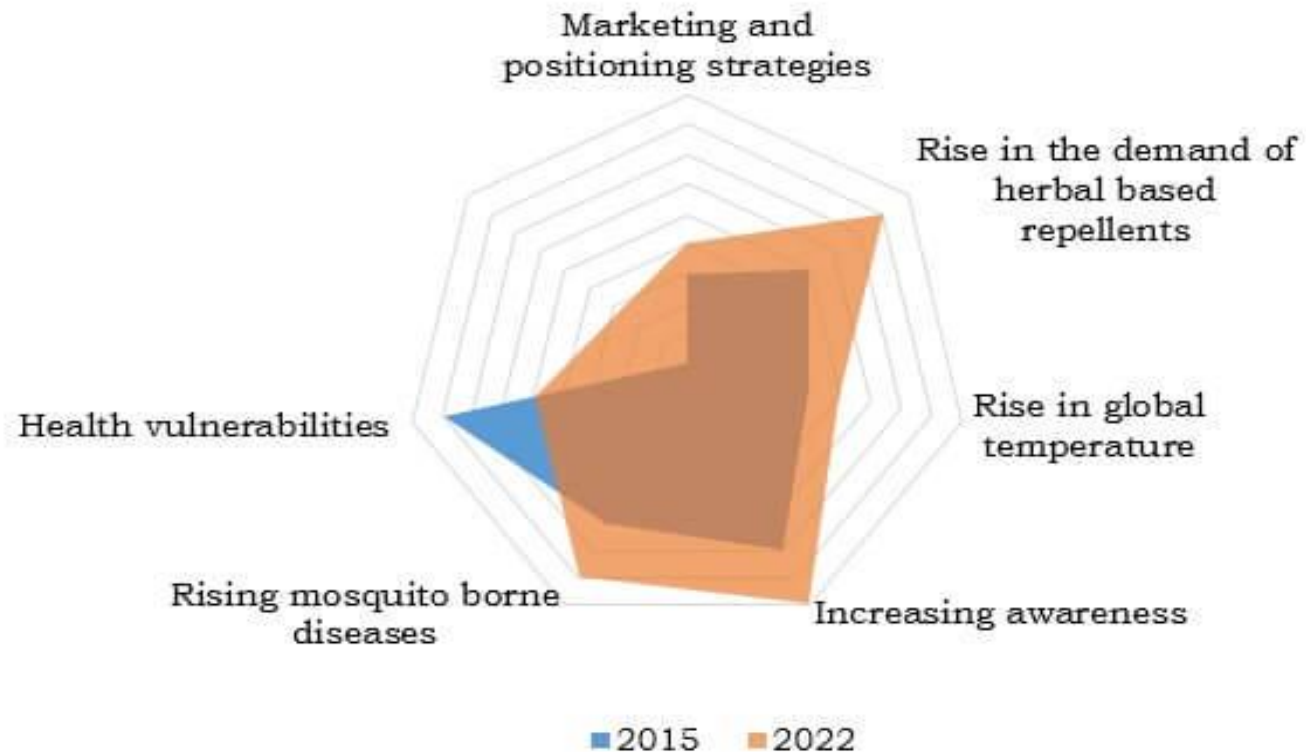

Global mosquito repellent market is primarily driven by increasing number of mosquito-borne diseases. Other major driving factors for the growth of mosquito repellent market are global warming which aids the breeding of mosquitoes coupled along with increasing demand for such products, especially in developing countries. However, harmful health effects of certain mosquito repellents is a major restraint that may curb the growth of the market. Nonetheless, technological advancements by a number of new players entering into this market, and emerging markets across the globe are likely to disclose the new avenues for mosquito repellent market in the near future.
